Hertie School of Governance

The Hertie School of Governance prepares exceptional students for leadership positions in government, business, and civil society. Through its PhD Programmes young researchers are equipped to work at the cutting edge of governance and public policy. Experienced professionals also have the opportunity to deepen their skills in the field of public management and public policy through a range of Executive Education offers.

A renowned faculty with expertise in economics, business, law and political as well as social science take an interdisciplinary, policy-oriented approach to the School's teaching and research agenda. Students from over 50 nations and a global network of academic partners position the Hertie School as an international centre in the heart of Berlin that actively engages in public debate with its wide range of events bringing together experts from theory and practice. We warmly invite you to read more about the Hertie School and hope to welcome you on our campus in the near future.

Degrees and programmes

The two-year Master of Public Policy (MPP) programme is geared towards students with a Bachelor degree who wish to expand their knowledge in the fields of global or European governance, economic policy, social policy, public management, and democratic governance.

The two-year Master of International Affairs (MIA) programme focuses on international relations and prepares candidates for positions requiring a profound understanding of today's governance challenges in a global multilevel system.

The MPP and MIA programmes include an internship and the opportunity to do a “professional year”. Students can also spend a semester abroad or complete dual degrees at one of the School's partner institutions.

The Hertie School offers the Doctoral programme in Governance, a three-year structured doctoral programme with a focus on governance and public policy; and contributes to the Berlin Graduate School for Transnational Studies (BTS).

Various options are offered for professionals: The Executive Master of Public Administration (EMPA) is for experienced professionals from the private, public, and non-profit sector, who wish to develop their management and leadership skills. By completing an Executive Seminar or Certificate, professionals can expand their management competence in a specific area.

EMPA participants benefit from several exchange programmes with partner universities as well as very flexible structures.

The Customised and Executive Programme Development Unit offers tailor-made solutions to companies and organisations in the public, private, and civil society sectors.

About the students

MPP students at the Hertie School on average have two degrees, have completed three internships, have studied, volunteered, or worked in three countries, and speak four languages. Around one third of each class chooses careers in business, another third in government and international organisations, the remaining third joins the non-profit sector and research.

Executive MPA participants study either full-time or part-time over two years. On average, they have ten years of professional life, are 36 years old, and combine work experience from more than 40 countries.

Faculty and research

An interdisciplinary focus and policy orientation distinguish the Hertie School's research agenda. Internationally recognised academics make up the core faculty. Together with adjuncts, guest lecturers and researchers from academia and practice, research assistants and doctoral candidates they cover a broad spectrum of public policy issues in their teaching and research. First-rate publications and numerous international research projects with partner institutions are further research highlights at the Hertie School.

Hertie School in dialogue

By engaging in public debate, the Hertie School plays a vital role as an ambassador of good governance. Regular lectures, conferences, and discussions are complemented by joint events with the School's partner institutions. Cooperations include regular events with the German Institute for Economic Research (DIW), the Kiel Institute for the World Economy, the Global Public Policy Institute (GPPI), and several partner universities across the globe.

The Hertie School's faculty members are constantly leading studies and research projects that tackle key governance challenges in Germany, Europe and further afield. Their findings are widely discussed in the media, and leaders from the public, private and civil society sectors draw on their expertise. In addition to the annual Governance Report, the Hertie School releases publications and studies on an ongoing basis. For an overview of the current research projects visit www.hertie-school.org/facultyandresearch.

Help shape tomorrow

The Hertie School is committed to the highest standards of excellence in teaching and research. Its graduates are already proving themselves in the job market. However, the Hertie School strives for continuous improvement. To achieve this ambitious goal, the School, as a privately-funded university, relies on external partners that share its vision and wish to contribute to its success.

Get to know our graduates—become an internship or recruitment partner of the Hertie School of Governance. Support the Hertie School by becoming a research partner, help strengthen our institution, or finance scholarships to make quality education available to talented students.

The Hertie School of Governance was founded at the end of 2003 by the Hertie Foundation, which remains its major partner. Situated in the heart of Berlin, a stone's throw from the houses of Parliament, various federal ministries, political representations, media organisations and research institutes, the school has its finger firmly on the pulse of the latest developments in public policy, governance and academia.
